Not illustrated. 1916 Excerpt: .for victory; let them see what our Army has done to repulse and hold the enemy. We must ask you to send in your own name an expression of heartfelt thanks to all the countries we visited, for the reception they gave us, and for all they shewed us; thanks which must reach the heroic armies and the magnificent navies. Let us not forget that the victory which England purchased at a heavy cost to herself has been of the greatest value to us and has helped to lighten our task. Our gratitude is not merely a personal feeling--it pertains not to us only but to our whole country and it is therefore right and desirable that the Imperial Duma should give voice to it. Great is the unity of the Armies which fight under the banners of Right and Liberty in Europe. And we gentlemen say to our countrymen: you--our comrades, --you--our brothers, be worthy of this great aim and victory is ensured. (Loud and prolonged applause from all sides of the House.) The President: You have heard with the same emotion as myself, I am sure, the inspiring words of the member of the Delegation who has just spoken, words which express the deep and lasting impression made upon him by the power and strength attained by our Allies. I think that this impression is shared by us all and that we must give voice to it by a unanimous vote of thanks. We...
