

Desert Tales

By Maria Eitz

Outskirts Press, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 226 x 127 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .During the terrible drought in the 1980s which gripped East Africa, squeezing her people, animals and the very landscape dry, I took a group of medical people to help a nomadic tribe in Sudan battle for survival. The Hadendowa, a branch on the Bega family tree, wander with their camels and goats in small groups through the arid land from the Eritrean Mountains to the Red Sea. Their forefathers established camps and resting places along ancient routes where water could be found. Today they still congregate around the same deep, hidden wells, to wait out the season of sandstorms while the desert whirls and churns, the sea of sand is whipped by a hot wind, and whole dunes fly through the air as if they are no more than handfuls of dust. The nomads laugh at our inability to cope with flying sand. Malesh! they say. Never mind! It is a habit of Allah s to crumble mountains and scatter dunes once or twice a year. Inshallah! They teach us, who came to teach them, how to...
